Students can be well prepared for the UPSR's English examination to ensure a stress-free experience.

Score 'A' for English

THE UPSR examination that Primary 6 children are taking this September is of vital importance as it is an indicator of the learning achievement of each student.

The examination system also encourages healthy competition among students, which will enhance results and recognition.

Sitting for their first-ever national examination at the age of 12 may be an overwhelming experience, particularly with the increasing stress to do well in all subjects.

Cambridge English For Life (CEFL) believes that sitting for UPSR does not have to be a fearful experience.

CEFL can help prepare UPSR students and build their confidence to sit for this important examination.

If you would like to help your child score an "A" in the UPSR English paper, come visit one of CEFL's 60 centres nationwide and discover how CEFL's UPSR English Workshop can help your child achieve that goal.

CEFL's UPSR Workshop can help your child develop the necessary skills and techniques to answer questions in the UPSR

English paper, identify the problem areas that they may face during the examination and focus on making improvements.

Each student will be provided notes, practice exercises and sample tests in the new examination format.

CEFL's experienced teaching faculty will share important knowledge on how to approach typical examination tasks and guide students on how to complete them, while creating a wealth of knowledge useful for the English subject.

Your child can revise effectively to prepare for the UPSR English Paper as CEFL provides face-to-face integrated learning, flexible delivery according to the candidates' needs as well as opportunities to revise units missed in the previous years while reinforcing lessons learnt in the year that they will face UPSR.

CEFL's UPSR English Workshop is now open for registration.
